CHAPTER VI

MISCELLANEOUS

26. Reinstatement in civil employ of persons required to perform service under this Act.—(1) It shall be the duty of every employer by whom a person called up under section 24 is employed to grant him such leave as may be necessary and to reinstate him in his employment on the termination of the period during which he has been so called up in an occupation and under conditions not less favourable to him than those which would have been applicable to him had he not been so called up:

Provided that if the employer refuses to reinstate such person or denies his liability to reinstate such person, or if for any reason the reinstatement of such person is represented by the employer to be impracticable, either party may refer the matter to the prescribed authority and that authority shall, after considering all matters which may be put before him and after making such further inquiry into the matter as may be prescribed, pass an order—

(c) requiring him to pay to such person by way of compensation for failure or inability to re-employ a sum not exceeding an amount equal to six months' remuneration at the rate at which his last remuneration was payable to him by the employer.

(4) The duty imposed by sub-section (1) upon an employer to grant leave to a person such as is described in that sub-section or to reinstate him in his employment shall attach to an employer who, before such person

27. Preservation of certain rights of persons called up for service.—When any person called up under section 24 has any rights under any provident fund or superannuation fund or other scheme for the benefit of employees maintained in connection with the employment he relinquishes, he shall continue, during the period for which he has been so called up and if he is reinstated, until such reinstatement under the provisions of this Act, to have in respect of such fund or scheme such rights as may be prescribed.

29. Penalties.—(1) If any person refuses or without lawful excuse (the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person) neglects to comply fully with the requirements of sub-section (1) of section 10 or of any order made under sub-section (2) of that section or with the requirements of section 13 he shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

(2) If any person wilfully fails to comply with any notice issued under section 12 or section 15 he shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

30. Service of notice.—Any notice or order to be served on any person for the purposes of this Act may be sent by post to that person at his last known address or may be served upon him in such other manner as may be prescribed.

31. Competent authority to be public servant.—For the purposes of this Act every competent authority shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of section 21 of the Indian Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860).

32. Power of Central Government to grant exemptions.—The Central Government may, for special reasons and subject to such conditions as may be prescribed, by order exempt any person from any obligation or liability under this Act or any particular provision thereof.

33. Power to make rules.—(1) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for all or any of the following matters, namely:—

(a) the composition and strength of any Air Force Reserve;

(b) the circumstances in which and the conditions subject to which any officer or airman may be transferred to the Regular Air Force Reserve under section 5;

(c) the age beyond which retired officers or airmen shall not be liable to serve in the Regular Air Force Reserve;

(d) the form and manner in which the particulars required by sub section (2) of section 10 shall be furnished;

(m) the conditions subject to which any person may be exempted from any obligation or liability under this Act or any particular provision thereof;

(n) any other matter which under this Act is to be, or may be, prescribed.

(3) Any rule made under this section may provide that a contravention thereof shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

34. Amendment of sections 2, 4 and 31, Act XLV of 1950.—In the Air Force Act, 1950,—

(i) in section 2, for clause (c) the following clause shall be substituted, namely:—

“(c) persons belonging to the Regular Air Force Reserve or the Air Defence Reserve or the Auxiliary Air Force, in the circumstances specified in section 25 of the Reserve and Auxiliary Air Forces Act, 1952”;

(ii) in section 4, for the words “the Indian Air Force Volunteer Reserve”, wherever they occur, the words “any Air Force Reserve or the Auxiliary Air Force” shall be substituted;

(iii) in section 31, for the words “the Air Force Reserve” the words “any Air Force Reserve or the Auxiliary Air Force” shall be substituted.

35. Repeal of Act XXXVI of 1939.—The Indian Air Force Volunteer Reserve (Discipline) Act, 1939, is hereby repealed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

It is necessary to constitute certain Reserves for the Air Force in order to enable quick expansion in an emergency. The Reserves proposed will be constituted from outgoing I.A.F. personnel, civilian pilots and technicians, and by raising an Auxiliary Force of volunteers from the public.

2. Regular Air Force Reserve.—The Regular Air Force Reserve will consist of Indian Air Force officers and airmen transferred after completion or termination of the period of their regular service to this Reserve subject to the existence of vacancies. The initial period of Reserve service will normally be 5 years for officers and 6 years for airmen subject also to their reaching such age limit as may be prescribed by the Government.

Those extended Service Commissioned Officers whose term of employment expires prior to the formation of this Reserve will also be liable to serve in the Reserve.

3. Air Defence Reserve.—The constitution of the Air Defence Reserve requires that a census should be taken of the civilian technical manpower available in the country which could be utilised if occasion arises. All persons within certain age limits possessing certain flying or other technical qualifications would be required to furnish certain particulars to the appropriate authority and submit themselves for medical examination. A register of persons who are fit for service would be maintained, and if and when occasion arises persons whose names are entered in the register will be called out for service. It is necessary to have legislation for this purpose on account of the shortage of trained personnel which obtains at present, and which is likely to persist for some time; and also to safeguard the interests of those who are called out from their jobs for training or required to serve in an emergency.

Provision is made requiring civil employers to grant any enrolled person such leave as may be necessary and to have him reinstated into civil employment after the termination of the period during which he has been called out.

4. Auxiliary Air Force.—The Auxiliary Air Force allows the enrolment of civilian volunteers (including Government servants) to give them part-time Air Force training. This provides for the fighter defence of the locality, in which its self-contained units and squadrons are raised. It may be looked at as the Territorial Army's air counterpart.

Advisory Committees will be set up in big towns, where it is intended to locate the Auxiliary Air Force Squadrons to maintain close liaison with the civil side. These Committees will serve also as a link between the Auxiliary Air Force and the Indian Territorial Army, and assist the Commanding Officers of the Units concerned to recruit civilian personnel.

The period of service in the Auxiliary Air Force will normally be five years in the first instance.

5. The period of training will be prescribed in the rules made by the Central Government from time to time and care will be taken to see that the training is so arranged that minimum dislocation of normal civil duties is caused.

8. The composition of the Reserves, the ranks of the persons enrolled and other allied matters will be regulated by rules made by the Central Government and it is intended to build these Reserves gradually.

BILL No 36 OF 1952

A Bill to amend the Displaced Persons (Claims) Act, 1950.

BE it enacted by Parliament as follows:—

1. Short title.—This Act may be called the Displaced Persons (Claims) Amendment Act, 1952.

2. Amendment of section 1, Act XLIV of 1950.—For sub-section (3) of section 1 of the Displaced Persons (Claims) Act, 1950, the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely:—

“(3) It shall remain in force for a period of three years only.”

3. Repeal.—The Displaced Persons (Claims) Continuance Ordinance, 1952 (V of 1952) is hereby repealed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Displaced Persons (Claims) Act, 1950 (XLIV of 1950), was enacted on the 18th May, 1950, for a period of two years only, as it was expected that the work of verification would be completed within this period. In spite of the best efforts of the Ministry of Rehabilitation, it has, however, not been possible to complete the work within this period. In the beginning, the displaced persons were slow in filing the claims and the period for receipt of claims had to be extended. There have been two other limiting factors. Firstly, the work involved verification of titles and assessment of value of properties situated in West Pakistan, which cannot be inspected by the Claims Officers and about which documentary evidence is not available in a majority of cases. Secondly, the Ministry, after making all possible efforts and tapping all available sources, has not been able to secure for posting more than 300 Claims Officers. According to the latest figures available, more than two-thirds of urban property sheets have been verified. It will, therefore, not be possible to complete the work before the expiry of the Law in force. An Ordinance was promulgated on the 5th May, 1952, temporarily to keep the Act in force. The present Bill seeks to replace the Ordinance and to keep the original Act in force for a total period of three years instead of two.
